FAIRFIELD FRIENDS AND NEIGHBORS

It is time for Fairfield Homecoming! Come visit with us—sit a spell and talk to a friend or an old acquaintance; search the yard sales; have a great meal; remember days gone by with the pictures and artifacts; or just relax and enjoy the entertainment.

Yard sales and displays will keep you busy for hours. There will be FREE face painting. The Whiskey City Cruisers are bringing their cars to a new location—Burgin's at 105 East Main Street (the site that David Stevens owned that was the former gas station.) The Kentucky Home Cloggers will dance in a cooler, more shaded spot on the front porch of Mayor Angie Ford's home at 408 West Main Street. Returning this year will be Brian Alvey, a musician and singer from St. Francis, KY, and Joe Ballard, a Fairfield native and karaoke master. Mary Popham will be reading from her latest novel, Love is a Fireplace. Mary was born and raised in Nelson County. Her mother, Helen Ball Rogers, spent sixteen years of her youth in the house that Darrell Hardin lives in today.

If you want a Fairfield keepsake, there are several unique items to choose from that help support the Homecoming:

- Coverlets: Depict Fairfield churches and extinct businesses. They are navy on a natural background and cost $35.
- Homecoming T-shirts: Various colors and sizes, $7 to $15.
- Quilt names: For $5 a deceased individual's name, birth and death years can be added to the second quilt. Any additional information provided is recorded in a separate book.
- Bank vault bricks: Bricks from the vault of the former Peoples Bank, later the Bank of Fairfield, cost $20 and come with an attached commemorative plate and history information.
- H. McKenna Distillery Print: Taking orders for a reproduction of J.P. Hathaway's "birds-eye view" of the distillery, circa early 1930s. Size 23" x 16" is $22; size 33" x 23" is $40.

We continually seek pictures of the Fairfield community—pictures of people, buildings, farm activities, or landscapes. If you have something that you wish to share, please contact Mary Ellen Marquess at 502-348-3475 (daytime), 502-252-5171 (evenings), or mrogan1@bellsouth.net.

Hope to see you in Fairfield on June 24!
