

THERE'S SO MUCH TO LEARN.
FROM HISTORIC HOMES TO HEADSTONES.

BARDSTOWN HISTORIC PRESERVATION 2019 WORKSHOPS

Free and open to the public.

The City of Bardstown's Historic Preservation Department is excited to announce 2019's historic preservation workshops! This year has exciting topics ranging from researching your historic homes, to hands-on practice with cemetery restoration. Workshops are held at the City of Bardstown Education Complex at 219 E. Muir St. in Bardstown.

THE PRESENTERS

DIXIE HIBBS

Former mayor and councilwoman. Noted historian.
Author of 16 books on local history.

JASON CHURCH

Materials Conservator for National Center for Preservation Technology and Training. Historic metals expert.

Give us a call at (502) 348-5947 or visit our office at 220 N. Fifth St.
Bardstown, Kentucky 40004
www.cityofbardstown.org

HANDS-ON HISTORY

If This House Could Talk Presented by Dixie Hibbs

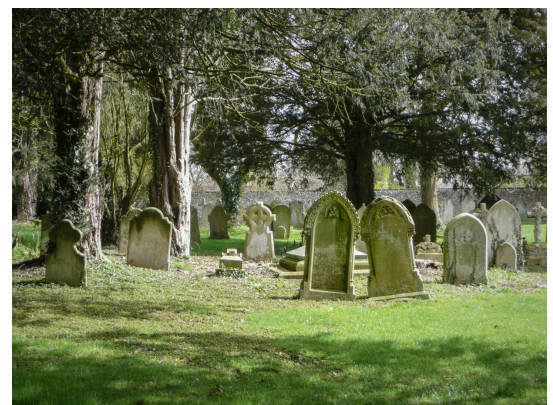

"How old is this old house?" Many people may ask you questions about your home's history. Where can you find the answers? In recorded deeds, lawsuits, published books, oral history, architectural details, and other local resources. During this workshop, Dixie will help you make a plan for your search of your home's past owners and history, using the same techniques she used to write 16 books on local history. You'll be surprised how much information can be found in public records!

Thursday, March 14, 2019 | 6 - 7 pm

Cemetery Conservation Presented by Jason Church

This two-day hands-on workshop will focus on cemetery care and restoration. Jason will demonstrate techniques to clean, preserve, and restore headstones. He will demonstrate setting a new base for a headstone that has been damaged and discuss the importance of cemetery care and how to conserve cemetery monuments. The workshop will include a review of new products and techniques for masonry materials conservation.

Friday and Saturday, June 14th - 15th 2019 | All day

To register for either of these free workshops, contact Preservation Coordinator RaShae Jennings: (502) 348-5947 ext. 2243 or rjennings@bardstowncable.net. Space is limited, so register early!